Your investor profile

How you decide to allocate your assets is the very heart of your financial strategy. It is therefore important that you take the time to determine what type of investor you are before deciding how best to allocate your assets.

The first step is to fill out Your Investor Profile. This document will help you evaluate many elements to consider when investing, such as your investment goals, investment horizon, your tolerance to risk and your knowledge of investments. The answers you provide will allow you to determine the investor profile (Prudent, Moderate, Balanced, Growth or Aggressive) that best meets your goals and most accurately reflects your attitude toward risk.

We recommend that you review your investor profile periodically or whenever changes take place in your personal or financial situation.

Risk Tolerance

6. Indicate your level of tolerance toward the risks related to the investment of your money.

- | | | |
|-------------|--|-----------|
| – Very low | I do not like the idea of risking my money. My sole objective is to safely conserve my investments and shelter these amounts from market fluctuations.* | 1 point |
| – Low | While a drop in the value of my investments bothers me, I can tolerate occasional drops to a maximum of 5%, knowing that I will earn more investment earnings in the long term. | 2 points |
| – Moderate | I am prepared to tolerate a short-term drop of between 5% to 10% of the value of my investments as long as I can count on higher investment earnings in the long term. | 5 points |
| – High | I am comfortable with a short-term drop of between 10% to 20% of the value of my investments because I know that in the long term, my investment earnings will allow me to make up for this drop and obtain higher earnings. | 10 points |
| – Very high | I hope to achieve long-term growth. A short-term drop (less than 1 year) of 20% of the value of my investments does not worry me. | 20 points |

* If you cannot tolerate any decrease in your capital, look for investments without any downward risk.

7. You have the possibility of investing $10,000 for one year. After one year, in what range would you accept the final potential value of your investment?.

- | | |
|--|-----------|
| – Gains only, between $10,000 and $10,300* | 1 point |
| – Between $9,500 and $11,000 | 2 points |
| – Between $9,000 and $11,500 | 5 points |
| – Between $8,500 and $12,000 | 10 points |
| – Between $8,000 and $12,500 | 20 points |

* If you cannot tolerate any decrease in your capital, look for investments without any downward risk.

Investment Knowledge

8. What is your level of knowledge about investments?

- | | | |
|-----------------|---|-----------|
| – Very low | I am just starting to become familiar with investments. | 1 point |
| – Low | I know that certain investments are riskier than others. | 2 points |
| – Moderate | I know about different investment types and their risks (e.g., equities are riskier than bonds). | 5 points |
| – Advanced | I understand the earnings potential and risks involved with these types of investments and their fluctuations in value over time. | 10 points |
| – Very advanced | I keep a constant eye on stock markets (equities, bonds, funds, real estate, etc.) and I have in-depth knowledge of such investments. | 20 points |

The Importance of Good Asset Allocation

One of the factors that has the most influence on the return generated by your portfolio is its asset allocation. Therefore, when you establish the distribution of assets in your contract, it is very important to choose a combination of income and equity that corresponds to your investor profile and risk tolerance level. You must also take into account any other investments you may have elsewhere.

Prudent Profile • From 8 to 26 points

Capital security is important to you. You have low tolerance for volatility. You are mainly seeking investments that offer a regular income and capital preservation.

Possible variations

Income
65-100%

Equity
0-35%

Growth Profile • From 90 to 119 points

You are seeking above average growth and are ready to accept a high level of risk. You are a patient investor and do not allow yourself to be influenced by fluctuations in your portfolio.

Possible variations

Income
20-40%

Equity
60-80%

Moderate Profile • From 27 to 55 points

You are seeking a certain level of capital appreciation and your tolerance for risk is moderate. You favour investments that offer a relatively stable income.

Possible variations

Income
50-70%

Equity
30-50%

Aggressive Profile • From 120 to 160 points

You have a strong tolerance for risk and market fluctuations do not worry you. You are seeking superior portfolio growth and are willing to accept substantial variations in the value of your portfolio from one year to the next.

Possible variations

Income
0-25%

Equity
75-100%

Balanced Profile • From 56 to 89 points

You are seeking a balance between income and capital appreciation. Your risk tolerance level is average. You are targeting medium- and long-term capital appreciation.

Possible variations

Income
35-55%

Equity
45-65%
